FUTURE PROBLEM SOLVING PROGRAM
INTERNATIONAL

Global Issues Problem Solving (GIPS) Evaluator

In GIPS, participants apply the six-step process to generate challenges and propose solution ideas related to the Future Scene. Using guidelines provided, evaluators score participant booklets. Participants look forward to the feedback received from evaluators because it provides them the opportunity to improve their problem solving skills in hopes of reaching the next level in competition.

Community Problem Solving (CmPS) Evaluator

The Community Problem Solving component allows students to apply the problem solving process to their community. Evaluators for this component evaluate teams in multiple stages. The first stage of evaluation is based on a written report and a six-page addendum (photos and other illustrations of student work). The next stage occurs at the International Conference where students provide a scrapbook and a display, providing further evidence of their projects success, and are interviewed by their evaluators. Evaluators work in pairs throughout the evaluation.

Scenario Performance (ScP) Evaluator

In the Scenario Performance competition, each student performs a live story relating to the International Conference topic. This competition allows students the opportunity to bring the futuristic ideas they create to an oral story for a live audience.

Scenario Writing (SW) Evaluator

In the Scenario Writing team competition, each student on a team of 4 writes a creative perspective to form a group short story relating to the International Conference topic. This competition allows students the opportunity to bring the futuristic ideas they create to life in their own, creative way. As an evaluator, you are asked to consider aspects ranging from style and mechanics to creativity.

All evaluators must pre-certify in the components they wish to evaluate. Contact Kyla@fpspi.org if you are interested in evaluating for Future Problem Solving.
